Global Ethics Exercise

• Review questions from Stakeholder viewpoint
• Answer questions to determine Stakeholder treatment
• To fill in Stakeholder Value Matrix Cell
Be Honest -- Facts are the Truth

| 1. What do we do to ensure we are open and truthful in communications? | 1. Our Status reports are transparent and in clear language. |
| 2. Do we state facts and are we truthful with the difficult message? | 2. We speak to Stakeholders in their terms. |
| 3. How do we ensure honesty in communication? Do we give meaningful and timely feedback to Stakeholders? | 3. We build a culture of transparency and trust. We are available. |
Be Fair -- Same rules Apply to All

1. How do we hold all Stakeholders needs in same regard?
2. How do we determine recognition and promotions?
3. How do we allocate special assignments?
4. Do we communicate in a fair manner, or tell only on a ‘need to know’ basis?

1. Evaluate impact to all Stakeholders before deciding and acting.
2. Allocate benefits based fairness – define what is fair to each stakeholder.
3. Assign special assignments as growth opportunities, not just most qualified now.
4. Disclose business issues that may impact team.

</tr>
<tr>
<td>2. Review compensation plans for staff for fair structure. Review special rewards for including all groups.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
Respect Dignity -- How do I Want to be Treated?

1. Each team member gives their special talent for the success of the project. How do we demonstrate respect for their talent?

   1. Recognize individual’s unique gift. Walk a mile in their shoes’, take time to understand their job.

2. How do our team practices meet the dignity and support self-esteem of our employees?

   2. Acknowledge their effort. Encourage and support and hear their issues. How do we say ‘Thank you’?
Honor the Environment – Who’s looking at the long-term? Environment?

<thead>
<tr>
<th>1. What is our Recycle/Reuse/Reduce plan?</th>
<th>1. Define a Recycle/Reuse/Reduce plan for each of our operating areas. Roll out employee awareness campaign. Acknowledge employee volunteer hours with periodic ceremonies.</th>

Using the Stakeholder Value Matrix

- Dissect a situation using the Stakeholder Value Matrix
  - Identify possible alternative
  - Identify Values in play
  - Identify Stakeholders impacted
  - Choose appropriate option
Driving Ethical Decisions
Exercise #1

Management finally recognizes the value of your team’s contribution, and they have granted a pool of funds $2,000 US to allocate to your 20 person team. Some have been working weekends, some not able to work overtime much, but try to help out. How do you allocate the extra bonuses? What do you recommend?

1) Really not that much, just throw a party!
2) Give each $100 – cash!
3) As a good PM you know who has logged the extra hours, calculate the percentage of each contribution and prorate the bonus pool. Some may be total OT, may be zero, some maybe 50%.

Resolving Conflicts
Exercise #2

Remember the PM with the two disruptive team members arguing loudly in the common collaboration room? Two men, you’ve often notice that they tolerate each other, at best, in meetings, often short in their responses to each other. Their disrupted behavior is escalating and impacting the performance of the team. You need to find a way to get them to work together. What are some options?

1) Ignore it
2) Send them to Human Resources
3) Bring them together and have an open and honest discussion about the impacts to the team using a Values point of view.

Unplanned Changes to Project - Exercise #3

While managing the research project the leaders held firm with our survey methodology – no changes from the prior year’s study. Until we were attempting to survey stakeholders with the following:

1. Unskilled labor ➔ we had surveys targeting professional staff
2. Spanish speaking only staff ➔ we had English surveys
3. Constituents without access to internet ➔ online survey’s only!

Options:

1. Do nothing hold methodology, go without these opinions
2. Change the methodology
